

Love-Lust-Kink #8 Book 5. Womens Sexual Health

Men dont have unfulfilled horniness much.

All they need is a private place where they can jerk off. If a guy masturbates three or more times a day, thats a pretty good day for him. Most men dont have psychological guilt about masturbating nor do they need an intimate connection to get off. Women are different for two major reasons: Their upbringing makes them repress their natural desire for pleasure. They are told to save it for marriage. Even then, some women are told sex is a wifely duty. Its not spozed to be about pleasure for them. Some feel guilty about having sex, even by themselves. A big part of the sexual experience for women is generally the emotional-intimate connection with their lover. Men generally just want to get off. A woman wants the emotional-intimate connection to go with sex. Back in the 1900s, the medical-mental health profession of the time created a womens disorder called hysteria. Nowadays, this disorder would be called something like: Premenstrual Syndrome/ PMS Generalized Anxiety Disorder/ GAD Female Sexual Dysfunction I call it unfulfilled horniness. Back then, in the name of the medical profession, when women complained of hot flashes and a general uneasy feeling in the body, doctors used to make housecalls to massage their clitorises. This was an accepted medical treatment. Doctors would go to wealthy womens houses since they were the only ones who could afford personalized medical treatment. These doctors, most of them presumably young because women didnt want some old fat doctor massaging their clits, would rub the patients clit until she released that hysterical energy which was to have an orgasm. They didnt know this was a sexual orgasm because there was no intercourse involved. They thought they were releasing this pent-up anxiety/ hysteria that was causing the woman psychological-spiritual distress. Back then, there wasnt much discussion about womens orgasms. It wasnt part of medical discussions. Even though it seems like fun, it was tedious for a doctor to massage the clits of maybe five women a day. His fingers and hands got tired. This was the nineteenth century mentality, around the 1870s when the Industrial Revolution was hot so they invented a bunch of crude vibrators to do the job. By 1910, they created an electric vibrator. It wasnt called a vibrator. They had all kinds of names for it but they werent sexual. It was a medical device to relieve hysteria. Women got to have sex without calling it sex. In those times, many women were brought up with religious values that more or less forbade sex except during service to the husband to procreate. There was no sex knowledge or sex education back then except for a few erotic novels and Margaret Sangers sex education pamphlets. You have to get it out one way or another. Even if you dont have a man, you have to have sex. Most men are poor lovers. They cant match the studs and hunks you can come up with in your fantasies. If you look at all the sex toys out there, 80% of them are for women. Men dont need them. They just need a hand to stroke their dicks. I discovered that the key to my happiness was to honor my true nature by releasing most of the natural energy inside of me to reach a standard I felt worthy of me so everyday my purpose is to release most of this energy which includes sexual and loving energy. It doesnt matter if you dont have a man or a female lover. You have to get over sexual guilt and repression to release all that sexual energy inside of you. If you dont, youll never be happy. There are loads of singles everywhere. Hardly any married person gets the sex and love they want. If you need love, get a dog or cat. Most of the time, they will give you more love than the significant other in your life. You have to resolve your unfulfilled horniness by getting those orgasms any way you can. Loneliness
