

Christian and Positive: Reflections on Christianity in an HIV+ world

Among the greatest tragedies of our age are the millions of deaths as a result of HIV/AIDS. The Christian Church has a unique opportunity to be an agent of healing and hope in this situation. However, there are not that many local congregations or church ministries that have taken up this challenge with earnest commitment. Part of the problem is that we lack a positive theology of HIV/AIDS. This book contains a wealth of information to assist you as a Christian individual, or community, to develop a positive theology of HIV/AIDS. The diagrams, statistics, and stories contained in these pages offer insights and tools for theological reflection, study, and discussion.
